

Minors Trust Fund

FAQs

Why do I have to apply for a disbursement from Minors Fund but not to receive per capita?

Any disbursement from the Minors Trust Fund requires an application because no participant is required to take a disbursement at any given time. An applicant may choose to leave their fund invested without taking a disbursement. There is no penalty, and the fund may earn more interest during this time. Meanwhile, at age 18, per capita payments begin automatically, but first payment depends on birthdate.

I have Direct Deposit for per capita, will my Minors Fund be direct deposited as well?

Per capita and Minors Fund are managed separately. The direct deposit form for Minors Fund is on the application. The Treasury Office is working to update this process and will update the application when changes are implemented. Currently, you must submit a separate direct deposit form for Minors Trust Fund if you want an electronic payment.

I used my Minors Fund for a school trip in 10th grade, can I take another education disbursement?

Each applicant is allowed a one-time disbursement for an educational trip. If you take the disbursement in middle school or high school, you are still allowed only one disbursement for an educational trip.

Can I use my Minors Fund to pay for college?

You are welcome to apply for an Education Disbursement; your application will be reviewed by EBCI Investment Committee. However, it is discouraged because the EBCI Higher Education program will fully fund your college tuition as well as pay for other school costs. Why is my Minors Fund invested? Isn't that risky?

The Minors Trust Fund is invested, and the principal (the per capita payments) is indemnified by Tribal Council. That means there is no risk to the participant of losing any principal because Tribal Council guarantees each participant will receive all the principal at a minimum.

The fund is invested, and the participant keeps all the interest earned. The EBCI Investment Committee is charged with oversight of the fund as an investment and statements are mailed quarterly to each participant by the Treasury Office. You can also log into the online portal at www.usicg.com to view investment results.

All statements are a snapshot of time at the statement date and account balances change almost daily. If you receive a statement with a negative interest earned, know that all your per capita contributions are guaranteed and while the interest earnings increase and decrease with market conditions, the next statement will be different.
